Make The Right Choice –
Enroll In College Classes Offered At Your High School!

In the next few weeks, high school students will begin registering for classes for the 2014-15 school year. Part of that process will be deciding whether to enroll in university-level classes offered by Boise State University’s Concurrent Enrollment Program at their high schools.

Concurrent Enrollment is a win-win for students, granting them the opportunity to experience advanced academic curriculum and a way to earn credits that will count for both high school and college. The cost to participate is only $65 per credit, a way for parents to help students get an affordable head start on college. Need-based scholarships are available so no students miss out.

Students are able to transfer their credits to all Idaho colleges and universities, as well as to most out-of-state institutions. Students can earn a semester or year worth of college credits depending on the high school they attend.

To participate, high school students need to have a 3.0 Grade Point Average (or 2.7 with instructor approval) and the permission of a high school representative and parent or guardian. Students earn a letter grade based on their day-to-day work done in class, which is documented on a Boise State transcript.

Registration for concurrent enrollment classes will start at the participating high schools this February and March. Students can ask their high school counselor for the approved university teachers at their schools. Once the fall 2014 semester begins, a concurrent enrollment representative will visit the student’s classroom to hand out registration materials and scholarship information.

“It’s important for parents and students to seek out academic advising to make the best class selection. The credits may count towards general education credits, or meeting a major requirement, while others may count as elective credit”, said Fabiola Juarez-Coca, director of Concurrent Enrollment at Boise State, “My goal is to offer classes that are general enough to count towards any degree a student chooses. We are always ready to help.”

Another great benefit of the program is that while students are enrolled in a Concurrent Enrollment class have full access to university resources; such as a Boise State student ID card ($25 savings), use of the Albertson Library in person and online, Writing Center for help with written work, and the Math Drop-in Center. They are also invited to all lectures and events on campus.

For a list of participating high schools and classes offered, view our program web pages or call program representatives at (208) 426-3750.