A Workshop for Current Boise State University Concurrent Enrollment Instructors

This two-day workshop deepens previous experimentation with genres by discussing the “genre triangle” of awareness, criticism, and production as a way for students to expand their understanding of genre.

During the workshop, we will encounter genres through a variety of situations that come with diverse requirements. In addition to the audience’s expectations and the writer’s goals, any given situation includes a constellation of affordances and constraints that govern how the writer addresses it.

Participants will read about and discuss these topics and collaborate to develop assignments, activities, and assessments for integrating them into their own classes.

Instructor

Dawn Shepherd
Associate Professor of English and Associate Director of the First-Year Writing Program at Boise State University

Location

Room 510, Ron and Linda Yanke Research Park, 220 E. Parkcenter Blvd., Boise (across from Red Robin restaurant)

Lunch and parking will be provided.

Registration Deadline: Monday, July 17, 2017

Registration is free.

Professional Development credit cost will be covered by the Concurrent Enrollment Program for those who wish to get the one (1) credit this workshop provides.

To register for the workshop contact:
Kristi Lakatos, Coordinator, Concurrent Enrollment Program
(208) 426-3294 or email: klakatos@boisestate.edu

Workshop Sponsored by:
◆ Boise State Concurrent Enrollment Program
◆ Boise State First-Year Writing Program

Visit us at concurrentenrollment.boisestate.edu